Paul has extensive accounting and finance experience in diverse roles including business support, controllership, budgeting, forecasting and auditing/risk management. He collaborates effectively with finance and nonfinance folks at all levels spanning multiple functions such as warehousing, supply chain and sales and marketing, among others. Paul's broad background provides multidimensional perspective when assessing issues, problems and processes that goes beyond just the finance viewpoint and leads to better client outcomes.

Paul has worked for large FORTUNE 500 companies in distribution, manufacturing and sales/marketing environments and has served as key finance partner to global business, supplier management and manufacturer services teams. He led the finance function for a third party logistics start-up business and coordinated the financial aspects of an automated supplier funding and settlement system implementation.
