With a comprehensive skill set in accounting, encompassing process improvement, procedural documentation, financial reporting, and an adept handling of billing, invoicing, and payroll, Cindy stands as a results-driven asset within the Fahrenheit consulting team.

Cindy began her career with an audit firm specializing in governmental agencies before transitioning into a pivotal accounting role within local government. She subsequently ventured into the realm of publicly held health insurance companies, where her expertise extended to financial reporting and various other accounting functions. Cindy then served as the controller for a nationally acclaimed regional health club chain overseeing their financial processes for over two decades.
