Clay has over 20 years of experience managing a wide range of financial activities, including planning, analysis, forecasting, and reporting. He specializes in turning raw data into meaningful action to improve processes, fine tune strategies, and boost staff development. With expertise in operations, marketing, sales, and project management, Clay easily helps clients build strong cross-functional teams.

His career has included financial oversight of numerous manufacturing, service, and sales operations. Clay built and led the finance team at a Fortune 500 company as they on-shored manufacturing, introduced new product lines, revised supply chains, and revamped ERP systems. He's also built and operated nuclear powered submarines.
