Jill brings a rare combination of technical accounting rigor and strategic finance experience spanning corporate FP&A, operational finance, commercial strategy, and investor relations. Over more than a decade, she has worked across consumer goods, hospitality, manufacturing, and distribution at organizations ranging from Fortune 500 to small and middle market.

Her experience spans both the technical and strategic dimensions of finance, giving her the ability to build analytical infrastructure and advanced excel models while also operating as a genuine thought partner to senior leadership. Her ability to translate complex financial data into clear, actionable analysis for executive and investor audiences reflects a career path that began in accounting and financial reporting before expanding into progressively more analytical and senior roles. That foundation, combined with fluency in modern data tools and AI-assisted analysis, gives her unique range across the full scope of a finance engagement.
