Chris has a proven track record of scaling, transforming, and unlocking value in B2B technology and consulting businesses. Chris helps clients accelerate growth, optimize operations, and drive strategic transformation. Leveraging deep expertise in digital and IT strategy, Go To Market performance improvement, business transformation, and AI/automation, he partners with executive teams to deliver measurable impact—whether that means improving EBITDA, increasing valuation, or launching new revenue-generating platforms. Chris works particularly well with private equity portfolio companies and enterprise technology leaders looking to scale with speed and precision.

He has held C-level and executive leadership roles across global technology, consulting, and services organizations, leading initiatives across North America and internationally as both a senior consulting partner and operating executive. His experience includes managing P&Ls exceeding $300 million, leading global teams of 1,000+, and guiding multiple organizations through successful private equity exits. Throughout his career, Chris has built and grown high-performing teams, turned around underperforming units, and delivered complex transformation programs across industries including software, SaaS, IT services, and communications.
