David brings over three decades of experience in the financial and accounting services industry. At Fahrenheit Advisors, he leverages the firm's extensive resources and expertise to serve the needs of private equity firms and their respective portfolio companies. His responsibilities entail building strong professional relationships, providing strategic solutions, and fostering valuable connections and partnerships across the business community.

Prior to joining Fahrenheit Advisors, David sourced and spearheaded client engagement initiatives designed to enhance collaboration with private equity firms and portfolio company executives, delivering audit, tax, and advisory services for a global accounting and consulting firm. His background spans Big 4 Accounting, international investment and commercial banking, as well as consulting roles.
